LIVED 15 YEARS AS MAN

Woman Wore Disguise Until Halted at Ellis Island.

After travelling about the country for fifteen years in male attire, the sex of Mary Johnston, of New Orleans, was discovered yesterday at Ellis Island when the immigration doctors decided to examine her for tuberculosis. Miss Johnston is fifty years old, slight of build and of a sallow complexion. Her manner and conversation show refinement and some culture. She won the sympathy of all the officials at Ellis Island who heard her story yesterday, following the disclosure that she was a woman. She arrived here on Saturday in the steerage of the American liner New York, from Southampton. Miss Johnston was born in Canada of English parents, both of whom died when she was twenty. Nature had blighted her with a thick black mustache and an unusually low toned voice, and it was in accordance with these unwelcome handicaps that she was forced to disguise herself as a man, associate with men and earn her living in occupations usually followed by the male sex.

Her sallow cheeks became scarlet yesterday when she was picked out of a group of men in the male detention ward on Ellis Island and told that she was suspected of having tuberculosis.

The woman protested that she was in perfect health, but the examining surgeon said he wanted to be sure, and ordered her to the hospital for examination.

The woman tried hard to control her nerves, but when the surgeon said, "I shall have to ask you to remove your clothing, Mr. Woodhull," Miss Johnston wept.

"Oh, please don't examine me!" she pleaded. "I might as well tell you all. I am a woman, and have travelled in male attire for fifteen years. I have never been examined by a doctor in all my life, and I beg of you not to make an examination of me now. I know a woman is treated with respect and courtesy in this place, and I ask that you send a woman to make the examination. Surely this consideration is due me as an honest and respectable woman."

The surgeons called in a matron at the woman's request, but later they examined her lungs to make sure she was not tubercular. It was found that she was in good health, but not rugged. She was an alien, but not an undesirable one, and had it not been for the clothes she might have been admitted to the country. The case, however, was called to the attention of Commissioner Watchorn, who will hold Miss Johnston until further examinations are made into her history.

Commissioner Murray, who was at the island yesterday, asked Miss Johnston why she had travelled as a man. The nervousness preceding the examination had passed, and, with the unfeigned ease of a man, the woman tilted back her Fedora hat well over her black short cropped hair, thrust her hands deep in the side pockets of her trousers, and said slowly and forcefully: "I was left alone in the world when I was a girl of twenty. I tried to get employment as a woman, but everywhere I went my low pitched voice and my mustache were against me, and I could not get on. For fifteen years I struggled along in the field of female employment, but it was of no avail.

"I have been an honest woman all my life and have never violated any law. I am sorry that it is a violation of the law for me to dress as a man, but I did not know it. I have become so accustomed to acting as a man that it will be difficult for me to live now as a woman. To go back to woman's apparel and try to earn my living would be exceedingly hard for a woman of my years."

Miss Johnston said that after leaving Canada she went to California, where she remained for fifteen years. As Frank Woodhull she sought employment in the country, and worked on several big ranches. She lived with the ranch hands, associated with them, but the identity of her sex was never discovered.

Miss Johnston has more than enough money with her to entitle her to escape the "public charge" clause of the immigration law. The officials consider her a thoroughly moral person, her health cannot cause her deportation, and it is generally believed she will be allowed to leave the island provided she adopts clothing befitting her sex.

BRITISH STEAMER LOST; CREW SAVED.

Nassau, N. P., Oct. 4.—The British steamer Hesleyside, Captain Hedlington, from St. Michael's September 27 for Key West, was driven ashore on Abaco Island in a hurricane on October 1. The steamer is a total wreck, but the crew were saved and have arrived here.

NEW CLUB FOR SEAMEN.

Mrs. Sage Aids in Providing Model Haven in West Street.

Seamen are again indebted to Greenwich Village for an innovation which will afford little oases of luxury and rest henceforth in their tempestuous lives. A new Institute for Seamen will be dedicated on Wednesday at No. 507 West street, where the first iron ship was built fifty years ago. The dedication will be a part of the exercises of the International Seamen's conference.

The conference and dedicatory exercises are under the auspices of the American Seamen's Friend Society, and from almost every country in the world representatives have arrived in this city in the last week to attend them. Among those representing the missionary staff of the American society are the following chaplains: Christian Nielsen, from Sweden; the Rev. A. Wollesen, from Copenhagen; George Speedie, Hamburg; the Rev. J. Adams, Antwerp; the Rev. T. Johnstone Irving, Italy; H. F. Fellows, Argentine Republic and Uruguay; H. C. Tucker, Brazil; the Rev. V. C. Dibble, Charleston, S. C., and the Rev. G. F. West, Seattle. The British and Foreign Sailors' Society is represented by the Rev. E. W. Matthews, its senior secretary and the New York Port Society by Theophilus A. Brouwer, president, and by the Rev. S. Boult.

This week also marks the eightieth anniversary of the American Seamen's Friend Society, and the eightieth annual sermon was preached yesterday morning in the Brick Presbyterian Church, where the society was originally organized, by the Rev. Dr. William Rogers Richards. Last evening addresses in honor of the day were made by the visiting chaplains in Calvary Baptist Church, 57th street and Sixth avenue; in the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn, and at the navy yard in Brooklyn.

The international conference will open to-day and close on Friday. The delegates will discuss and try to solve some of the problems which confront the seaman the world over.

The Institute for Sailors is the only one of its type in the world, and offers hotel and club accommodations to two hundred sailors for the first time in history. The building has cost $325,000, and was made possible largely through the gift of $150,000 from Mrs. Russell Sage. Bedrooms, social suites, billiard and pool tables, shower baths, a tiled swimming pool, bowling alleys and concerts are provided for the officers and men of the merchant marine. A chapel, bank, outfitting shop, restaurant and auditorium for entertainments are some of the features. For lower charges than those levied by the "crimps" and boarding house "sharks" any seaman may there enjoy the luxury of a private club. The building stands at West and Jane streets, directly facing the Cunard piers.

SALE OF TAFT SPEECHES STOPPED.

Edison Company Gets Court Order to Prevent Auction of Phonograph Records.

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 4 (Special).—It took the restraining order of a Supreme Court justice last night to prevent the sale at auction of thirteen hundred phonograph records of Judge Taft's election speeches. The records and a number of phonographs had been taken in part payment for a Rutherford house and lot.

The Edison company has an agreement with jobbers that no phonograph record shall be sold for less than 35 cents. When it was learned that the Taft speeches were to be sold at auction the company's attorneys obtained the order. A large crowd of persons, anticipating an underpriced sale, had gathered.

WILSON COIN COLLECTION ON SALE.

The collection of United States cents owned by the late James B. Wilson, of this city, will be sold at the Collectors' Club, No. 24 West 26th street, the first sale beginning this afternoon. The sale will be under the direction of Thomas L. Elder, of No. 32 East 23d street, who is a member of the American Numismatic Society and the Royal Numismatic Society of London.

Besides some choice examples from Oriental countries, the collection includes the uncirculated 1792 half dimes, said to be the finest known specimen; the proof 1838 O half dollar, the proof 1827 quarter dollar, the $5 Bechtler, the "750 Gr. Rutherford County" variety, the $2 50 Templeton Reid, the round $50 Wass Molitor "slug" and the uncirculated cents of 1793 and 1804.

BARBER FOOLS LAWYER

Wins Good Bet on Right of Aliens to Vote for President.

"Next!" called the first assistant barber, Karl Brunotte, in a barber shop in 103d street on Saturday morning.

A brisk looking man, with a legal air, promptly reclined in the proffered seat and said: "I am in a large hurry; once over, and not too close, please."

While lathering the face of the legal looking man the barber asked, in a friendly tone and broken English:

"Whose going to vin, maybe yet?"

"Giants," grunted the man, trying to determine, by looking at the reflection of 1 o'clock in two large mirrors, whether he had twenty-three minutes to keep an appointment at the Battery or was twenty-seven minutes late.

The barber explained that his inquiry had reference to the Presidential race.

"I aindt speaking aboudt feetball," he said, choppily. "I woted for Blaine ven I hadt been in der Unided Stades only one year," he added confidentially.

"You voted, you say, one year after you landed?" strained the voice of the man through a heap of stewed cloths.

"Shuer—undt I woted mit legality," cheerfully acquiesced the surgeon in charge of the two days' beard.

"You should have been arrested for voting before you were a citizen of the United States; why weren't you?" asked the man, indignantly.

The barber then related how he had landed in Wisconsin from the Fatherland, and again insisted that it was not necessary for a man to be a citizen of the United States to vote "mit legality" for a Presidential candidate.

The man with the legal air bridled.

"I woted for Blaine," continued the barber phlegmatically.

And then he said that if Blaine was not elected it was not through any lack of "patrioticism" on his part. After which he asked the customer in a confidential tone if he wouldn't like a massage.

"Karl," spoke the shavee sharply, "don't ever make a fool break to any one again such as you have just made to me. You were lucky not to be jailed twenty-four years ago when you cast an illegal vote. But don't brag about it. Blaine is dead —let your crime against the laws of the country die also. It was ignorance probably that led you to the very portals of just chastisement in your youth. But don't let any one else ever hear you make a break such as you have just made to me—that a man need not be a citizen of the United States to vote for President."

The barber said he was willing to bet $5 on it.

"What do you think of it?" called the customer to a friend who was awaiting his turn by the wall. "Here's a German who boasts that he voted for Blaine one year after settling in Wisconsin from the old country, and now tries to bet me, a lawyer, born in this country, that what he did then was legal, and that the same thing can be done now."

His friend said he believed the barber was "crazy," and intimated that if bets were to be made he would himself enjoy picking up a financial trifle.

"Shuer," assented the barber, who promptly pulled two $5 bills from his fob pocket. The customer and the customer-to-be—because, they said, the bets were so foolish—placed against the rather worn specimens of "emerald paper" deposited on the counter by the barber two crisp $20 bills.

A book containing the naturalization laws of the various states was then procured.

The barber said later that Saturday, from the point of view of financial returns, was better by far than any other he had been permitted to meet with in his long course of tonsorial acitvities "in remote and nearby regions of der Unided Stades."

"The right to vote comes from the state, and is a state gift," said the book. "In nearly one-half of the Union aliens (who have declared intentions) vote, and have the right to vote equally with naturalized native born citizens. In the other half only actual citizens may vote."

The attorney and his friend found that an alien who had declared his intention to become a citizen was, after a short residence in Alabama, Arkansas, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas and Wisconsin, entitled to the right of suffrage.

Clasping in his hand the two crisp $20 bills, the barber drew from the repository a clean towel, which he fitted to the headrest of the chair.

"Next!" he called.

It was noticed that this time he wore a slow German smile.

JUST A BIT HARDER TO GET A DRINK.

Story in Tribune a Week Ago Results in More Care in Saloons.

The story printed in last Monday's Tribune to the effect that a mysterious tip had gone out that the police had received instructions to inform saloonkeepers to "go as far as you like" on Sunday, had its effect yesterday when it was found that the "lid" had been clamped down a bit.

There was no more drinking at the bar, it was said, and in the Raines law hotels the waiters took good care to hand out a sandwich with each order. Prospective customers were more closely scrutinized yesterday than on the Sunday before, and in several cases admission at the "family entrance" was denied.

One experience of a representative of The Tribune showed the precautions taken yesterday. He obtained admittance to a rear room of a café. On calling for a drink the waiter departed to fill the order, but evidently received different orders from the proprietor, for he did not return. All questions as to what had become of the appetizer were met with the reply "It'll be here in a second." Seconds grew into minutes, and still no refreshment, and, after nearly half an hour's waiting, the reporter went out, followed by many hard looks.

In a number of cases where the saloonkeepers did not obey instructions not to do business "too raw" arrests were made as a warning to others.

THE PETROLEUM FIELDS.

Operations in the various oil fields continued to be retarded last week as a result of the drouth which has prevailed for many weeks past. In some of the fields work has been suspended for want of water, while in other sections the work has been materially reduced. About the only activity has been in the Mingo pool, in Jefferson County, Ohio. At the close of the week there were more than fifty rigs and drilling wells in this field, but it is probable that one-fifth of them will not be drilled. All of the smaller streams in West Virginia and Southeastern Ohio are practically dry, and there seems to be nothing for operators to do but to shut down and wait for rain. The developments of the last week have not been accompanied by any sensational results. In the Mingo field operations have been fairly active, but dusters have been very much in evidence. Several new producers, however, have been brought in, one making seventy-five barrels a day and several others showing a smaller production. Notwithstanding the new strikes, the production of the field is on the decline, and the thirty wells that are now on the producing list show a daily output of about sixteen hundred barrels. In Sparta, Randolph County, a 50-barrel producer was reported, which caused considerable surprise among operators. So many false alarms have come from this section that very little credence was placed in the report at first. However, the well continues to show the above amount, and if it holds out it will probably be followed by a good deal of work in the near future. In the Illinois and Kentucky fields the drouth continues to hinder field work, and the week has been rather a quiet one in the fields producing the higher grades of oil. Some activity centred in the Flat Rock field, in Montgomery township, but the oil is of a low grade.

Refined petroleum is quoted unchanged at 8.50 cents in barrels and 5 cents in bulk in New York. Philadelphia prices are on a basis 5 points lower. The European spot markets are unchanged as follows: London, 6 13-16 pence per imperial gallon; Antwerp, 21⅛ francs per 100 kilos, and Bremen, 6.[illegible] marks per 50 kilos.

HELD FOR FORGERY, CHARGES ARSON.

Merchant Who Caused Boy's Arrest Taken Into Custody on His Complaint.

Louis Freith, eighteen years old, of No. 63 East 101st street, was held in $1,500 bail yesterday by Magistrate Walsh in the Harlem court on a charge of forgery made by Abraham Marcus, a dealer in woollen goods at No. 565 Broadway, who was also a prisoner on a charge of arson, made by young Freith. Marcus was held in $5,000 bail for examination on Tuesday.

After his arrest, Freith, the police say, told of a fire which occurred on November 22, 1907, at No. 565 Broadway. He said Marcus threw a sponge saturated with gasolene into a loft occupied by H. W. Seigel, a dealer in silks on the same floor as Marcus's woollen goods establishment. The fire spread to Marcus's place, and Marcus, the boy said, swore in his fire insurance papers that his goods were worth more than they really were.

Freith pleaded guilty, saying that the checks which he had forged amounted to only $100, and not $2,000, as charged. Marcus emphatically denied the arson charge.

IMPROVEMENTS AT CITY HOSPITAL.

Increased Facilities for Caring for the City's Poor and the Sick.

In a statement issued by the New York public charitable institutions attention is called to the improved conditions for the care of the poor and sick of the city.

The improvements in the City Hospital include new brick dormitories for men and women helpers, a superintendent's residence, staff house and large service building, containing storerooms, kitchens and dining rooms. At the Metropolitan Hospital a large training school for nurses has been built, several unsightly old buildings have been removed and the appearance of the grounds has been improved. A new pavilion, just begun, is intended to relieve the unsanitary overcrowding of patients in the tuberculosis infirmary. At the New York City Home for the Aged and Infirm, Manhattan division, new reception buildings for both men and women are under construction.

Much progress has been made in raising the efficiency of the inspection of the supplies sold to the departments, and the boat service of the department has been much improved.

HOPE TO ARBITRATE LYNN STRIKE.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 4. In order to avert the serious blow to the city's business which would result should the strike of the lasters in fifty-three of the shoe factories here be prolonged, the City Board of Trade and the Associated Charities held meetings to-day to discuss methods of bringing the strikers and manufacturers together to arbitrate. President R. S. Bauer of the Board of Trade, with other members of that organization, will try to arrange a meeting to-morrow with Joseph Caunt, of the Joseph Caunt Company, where the strike started.

SPRAYS OF SUCCESS FROM THE MARCELLE WAVES BEATING AGAINST THE CASINO COAST.
TRIBUNE—"'Marcelle' is such a charming creature that she will probably pluck the laurels from the Merry Widow's brow, and reign queen of the theatrical season of 1908-09."
WORLD—"Good songs, pretty girls in 'Marcelle.' Miss Gunning makes a hit as a star."
HERALD—"A great deal of enthusiasm. It was a very happy first night."
ALAN DALE, in AMERICAN—"Miss Gunning owns the best voice in the light opera market and is very nice indeed."
ADOLPH KLAUBER, in TIMES—"Served to establish Louise Gunning's popularity firmly."
J. C. GARRISON, in PRESS—"Merry and melodious is the Casino's 'Marcelle.'"
FREDRICK SCHRADER, in THE GLOBE—"An unqualified triumph."
POST—"In for a long life at the Casino."
TELEGRAM—"Her songs were encored again and again."
ASHTON STEVENS, in JOURNAL—"'Marcelle' brings a melodious wave to the Casino."
ACTON DAVIES, in EVE. SUN—"She sang like a thrush. There is no singer in her class. Her personal success was complete."
FREDERICK McKAY, in MAIL—"With 'Marcelle' as a catapult, Miss Gunning sails gracefully and gaily to the realm of stars."

ARE YOU WAITING IMPATIENTLY
FOR THE NEXT INSTALMENT OF THAT STIRRING SERIAL STORY
A KING IN KHAKI WHICH BEGAN IN THE
Sunday Tribune
YESTERDAY, OR DID YOU MISS THE OPENING CHAPTERS?

The author of "A King in Khaki" has a broad human understanding and sympathy. He set forth to make a tale that would have strength and red blood and good honest virtues in it. He does not make his hero perfect—Smith is too real for that—but he measures up to bigness. Do you remember how the model boy or the model girl used to irritate you into rebellion? We don't outgrow that feeling as the years pass by.

If you did not start this story you probably did not get THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE and therefore missed a great treat, for the Magazine Section alone contained these good things:

A Great Shorty McCabe Story by Sewell Ford, Called "Getting Splashed by Doris"

The Attack on the Chaise. Galloping Dick Rescues a Maiden in Distress. By H. B. Marriott Watson.

The Voices of Fishes. By John N. Cobb

The Strength of the Prairies. By William R. Lighton

My Youth's Ambitions—And the Result. Julia Ward Howe, Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Joseph G. Cannon.

Don't Miss The Sunday Tribune

If you cannot secure it from a newsstand advise the Circulation Department of THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.
