

HEY, SARGE THAT GIRL IS A BLOKE

Linda's kissogram shock

KISSOGRAM girl Linda Gold stole a kiss from a "handsome" policeman who winked at her, a court heard yesterday.

"He loved it, he was like an octopus," the buxom blonde claimed.

But the policeman was in for a shock. A colleague called out to him: "Sarge, do you know the lady's a bloke?"

The court heard that former Soho club hostess Gold, 28, who claims to be an old flame of Boy George, had a sex-change operation last year.

See-through

She was arrested for parading through London's crowded Oxford Street in her kissogram outfit—a see-through bra, fishnet stockings and see-through panties.

Police Constable Baynall told Marlborough Street magistrates that two middle-aged women claimed her outfit was "disgusting".

Gold refused to fasten her coat and was arrested.

Asked why she did not do up her coat, she said: "Why? Punks dress worse. I'm not ashamed of what I have got."

Gold, of Clapham, London, took her coat off in the dock to reveal a black satin French maid's mini dress, apron and black stockings.

She said: "I spied a handsome sergeant who winked at me, so I went over and gave him a kiss and he loved it. The crowd weren't offended at all. They were loving it too."

She said that as two other policemen arrested her the onlookers booed and hissed.

Gold was found guilty of insulting behaviour and was conditionally discharged for six months.
