

Transexuals Plan Wedding

Alternative press writer Angela Douglas, 33, founder of the Transexual Action Organization (TAO) and co-founder of the Eon Society, and Tisha Goudie, 30, former TAO Defense Director and the final president of the Transexual Rights group, have announced their engagement.

Both transexuals were born male, have partially changed their sex to female and have lived as women for many years. Douglas is a former Air Force meteorologist and Goudie has worked as a model. They explained that the concept of "husband and wife" doesn't exist between them but it might be possible to marry legally after one of them undergoes complete sex-change surgery, as both plan to do eventually.
