

FROM THE FOUNDER

By Marsha C. Botzer, MA

The anger I feel at a slight – be it verbal, physical or even imagined – is a raw feeling that cries for action, sometimes for vengeance.

But nowadays I do not do it, that act for which I would be condemned and ultimately shamed. Instead, I listen to my great teachers and hold off. My teachers are the many people who use Ingersoll's support groups. They have taught me how tempting it is to gossip and revenge, but more importantly, how satisfying it is not to do it. They have taught me about the complicated nature of our lives – nothing is too simple to be left out of our discussions. I thank you all, all the thousands who have come to Ingersoll over the years.

With so many people at work on gender issues these days, we have the inevitable permutations of awakening selves (we are tempted to divide and conquer ourselves!)

What saves us is discussion. In our groups and in our private talks, we push past the petty things which separate us, on to the greater questions of who we are and how we shall bring these selves into the world. So, we reaffirm the basis of our work. Look around the meeting room and see the small pink and yellow signs above the windows:

All expressions of Gender are welcome and encouraged at Ingersoll Center

These words hang on our walls and lips, reminding us of the work that must be done. With such power around us, how can we ever be so small as to give away our selves to slights or divisions? We will not. We are saved by an honest discussion. Join Us.

INGERSOLL AT PRIDE FESTIVAL FOR THE FOURTH YEAR IN A ROW

For the fourth year in a row, Ingersoll Gender Center will be present at the Pride Festival on Sunday, June 29, 1997, at Volunteer Park. When the Pride March finishes it's trek up Broadway, it terminates in Volunteer Park. Then it's time for speeches, fun, souvenirs, good food and drink.

The 1997 Freedom Day committee, organizers of Seattle's annual Lesbian/Gay/Bisexual/Fransgender Pride Parade/March and Freedom Rally, are once again gearing up for another successful year.

Last year the Freedom Rally in Volunteer Park entertained close to 100,000 people and this year the committee expect to raise that figure even higher. With such a large and diverse crowd, the possibilities are endless for booths. In the past there have been literature tables, food booths, arts and crafts, clothing manufacturers and carnival-type booths, all participating in this gala event. Last year there were approximately 300 booths and it is hoped that there will be at least as many this year.

Ingersoll is looking for volunteers to staff the booth between the hours of 1:00 and 5:00 pm. So all you T-folk and friends stop by and say 'Hi'. Hope to see you on the 29th of June.

1 cup of shredded cabbage 1 cup of shredded lettace 3 stalks diced celery 4 diced onion (greet onion may be substituted for color and a different taste) 4 cup chopped black alives 1 cup chopped "baby corn" (opt.) 2 packages uncooked Top Ramen-type noodles 4 cup of chopped parsley (opt.) 4 cups of chopped nuts (walnuts or your choice) A light vinaigrette dressing (You might up one of the sweet, non-fat dressings put out by S&W) Breparation:

Ten minutes before serving, break up Ramen-type noodles (try to get them as close to individual noodles as possible) Add noodles to salad and allow to marinate.

Presentation:

This is a delightful meal-in-a-bowl for a hot Summer lunch or dinner. Serve with Brown-and-Serve rolls and iced tea with mint or lemon.

Enjoy and be Proud!

THE BUTLER DID IT! BY PAT BUTLER, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

DEADLY SINS

You look at me and say, "No Way!" You look at me and say, "You're gay!" In a voice which lessens me and you. It hurts us both, but what you do Is shroud yourself in righteous words To hide the damage thus incurred. And you're applauded by those who hold The same time-tested, worn and old Clichés about who's good or bad. But what I find unutterably sad Is hearing hatred wrapped in love By you who say that God above Has given you the right to claim Ownership of me in 'His Holy Name'. No one owns me and I declare Your bogus claims are naught but air Infused with incense; a mystic cloud To rip from me these words: I'm Proud!

About 25 percent of post-menopausal women in the United States take estrogen replacement therapy because of evidence that it prevents osteoporosis and heart diseases. Even more of these women feel free to have a drink now and then because of research showing that it, too, may protect against heart disease.

But a new study raises a host of questions about the long-term health consequences of drinking even small amounts of alcohol while taking the hornone therapy. The study found that when post-menopausal women on oral estrogen drank the equivalent of just half a glass of wine, their levels of estrogen circulating around in their blood nearly doubled, on average. After a drink comparable to three glasses of wine, estrogen surged more than threefold. One of the most significant questions raised by the new study is what, if any, effect the striking rise in estrogen has on a woman's risk of breast cancer.

Studies show that estrogen therapy protects against heat disease and osteoporosis, but may increase the risk of breast cancer. Some research also shows that moderate alcohol consumption -- one drink for a woman -- may decrease the risk of heart disease and increase the risk of breast cancer, as well. The breast cancer findings are the subjects of medical dispute.

The study is the first one to look at the effects of alcohol on oral estrogen replacement therapy. "I was surprised to see estrogen levels rise so much," said Dr. Elizabeth S. Ginsburg, the lead author of the report and an assistant professor of obstetrics, gynecology and reproductive medicine at Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Howard L. Judd, vice chairman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of California at Los Angeles School of Medicine, said that some increase in estrogen after a drink, was to be expected based on previous findings that alcoholic men had elevated levels of estrogen. But he said, "I was surprised by the magnitude of the change." The new study, which is being published today in the Journal of the American Medical Association, suggests that "alcohol may increase the beneficial as well as the detrimental effects of estrogen therapy," said Dr. Wulf H. Uktain, director of obstetrics and gynecology at the University Hospitals of Cleveland, and an expert on menopause.

The two-day study compared 12 healthy post-menopausal women taking estrogen replacement therapy with 12 who were not receiving the therapy. The estrogen used was one milligram of Estradiol, the most potent of the many forms of estrogen. At 9 P.M., the women in the estrogen therapy group took Estradiol and at 9 A.M. the next day, half the women in each group drank a cocktail made of pineapple juice and vodka that was equivalent in alcoholic content to three glasses of wine. The other half got a soft drink made from pineapple juice, glucose and water. Blood Estradiol rose significantly above base line levels in the women taking estrogen therapy and drinking alcohol. Estradiol climbed at the same rate as blood alcohol levels, the study found.

Ten minutes after the women started drinking, when they had consumed the alcoholic equivalent of a half glass of wine, their Estradiol levels were almost double, Dr. Ginsburg reported. After 50 minutes, when they have finished their drinks, Estradiol levels had increased more than threefold. In other words, they were 326 percent higher than the levels that are supposed to be reached by estrogen therapy. Estradiol declined at the same rate as the blood alcohol, returning to base line levels within six hours. Virtually identical results were found the next day, when the women originally in the soft drink group were given alcohol and the alcohol group were given soft drinks. On both days, there was no significant rise in Estradiol in women who did not take estrogen therapy or alcohol.

There are many unanswered questions. How and why did alcohol increase Estradiol levels in women who were taking estrogen replacement therapy? Would alcohol have this effect on women taking estrogen therapy in its many other forms, including oral conjugated equine estrogen, or Premarin, the most popular out? In a previous study, Dr. Ginsburg found that estrogen levels rose in women who drank while using the estrogen skin patch, although the increase was just 40 percent.

Perhaps the most urgent question is whether women should have second thoughts about estrogen therapy in the light of the new study, or at least agree to give up alcohol before going on it. While doctors would not argue with a woman who wanted to abstain from alcohol, Dr. Ginsburg said it was premature to recommend that women do this. "The dilemma I have in my practice is that estrogen replacement decreased heart disease and so does social drinking," she said. "I'd want to see other studies confirm our findings before physicians change their practice."

LAMBERT HOUSE SEEKING VOLUNTEERS

Lambert House is an activities and resource center for gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender and questioning youth ages 14-22. The center is located at 15th and Denny on Capitol Hill. The goal of Lambert House is to foster an increased sense of self, capability and resilience among sexual minority (GLBT) youth through the development of personal, social and life skills. We approach this mission through educational and informative resources such as tutoring, a youth computer lab, community presentations and discussions, recreational activities such as an artist in residence program and group outings, youth leadership opportunities, a jobs board, community internships, and support groups. In addition, Lambert House offers an unstructured drop-in center, where youth find support from peers and adult volunteers and are able to get information about referrals to local social service programs.

Lambert House is seeking adult volunteers age 25 and up to supervise the drop-in center, teach youth computer skills, participate in and provide transportation to activities, and greet youth and adult visitors to the center. Volunteers receive extensive training. They also need volunteers for office and donation assistance. If you wish to help, please contact Lynne at 322-0415 for further information and application materials.

P.O.V.* *POINT OF VIEW

DOES ALCOHOL USE AFFECT FTM'S? By Carl Tripp

(Reprinted from the TWO SPIRIT NEWS, the newstetter of the Atlanta Gender Explorations [AGE] used with permission)

When I read the article by Susan Gilbert, (ed. note: see Estrogen Therapy and Alcohol: Wrong Mix?, this issue)I only skimmed it as potential article for the newsletter. When I read it a second time, I began to see that there was a possible correlation between women, estrogen therapy, alcohol and us (FTM's). If it is true that doctors are seeing a marked increase in estrogen levels of women drinking doesn't that send a message to us that we should be careful of how much alcohol we consume?

Our purpose for taking testosterone is to negate the effect of estrogen levels on our bodies allowing for the development of male secondary traits. If alcohol consumption causes estrogen levels to rise sharply, it would appear that drinking is counter-productive to our goal of maximizing our body's potential to masculinize.

While studies discussed in (Susan's) article are not fully conclusive, it caused me to reevaluate my drinking habits. It is also important to note that alcohol usage negatively affects an individual's liver. Dr. Sheila Kirk has talked in her lectures and written in her books on the extra stress that testosterone places on the liver because that is where the body breaks it down for excretion after it is done using it. If the liver is damaged from prior alcohol usage (think about cirrhosis of the liver and jaundice), the body has a much harder time processing the testosterone for break down. This may cause elevated liver enzymes. If the elevation cannot be controlled, a physician may decide to have the patient take a lower dose of testosterone, or in the worst cases, hormone therapy may be stopped.

My conclusion on all of this is that keeping your alcohol consumption to a minimum makes only good sense. 1 do not want to give my natural estrogen production the upper hand, nor do I want to risk the loss of hormone therapy due to liver damage I could have prevented by exercising some self-control.
