

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

NEW YORK MARKET. The report of the New York banks for the week ending yesterday shows a considerable reduction in loans, notwithstanding the fact that the money market is still very tight.

Table with columns for various financial metrics: Loans, Deposits, Reserves, etc. Includes data for July 15, 1918, and July 7, 1918.

There was an increased demand for money at some of the leading discount houses yesterday, but this was the exception rather than the rule.

The mercantile demand was more active for Eastern exchange, but with a small surplus for Western exchange, and with a small surplus for the balance of the week.

The New York market was steady for most of the day, but prices of 1881 and 1910 bonds sustained an advance of 1/4 cent.

Table of bond prices: U. S. 4 percent bonds, U. S. 5 percent bonds, etc.

There was not much investment demand here, but there was a steady demand for Eastern exchange, and holders of Western exchange were selling at a profit.

Table of stock prices: Western Union Telegraph Company, Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, etc.

The market continued dull at previous prices. Wheat is less active and weaker. Corn is in fair demand.
